British Zionists Want Army In Palestine Now

A call for immediate formation of a Jewish army in Palestine to help Great Britain's fight in the Middle East was made by Rabbi M. A. Landau, of South Shields, at a special Zionist meeting in London, England.

"The most obvious thing to do is to strengthen the British forces in Palestine, yet the Jewish offer of their complete and total man power and resources has been persistently and imprudently rejected," he said.

"If Britain had accepted the Jewish offer, she could have had now in Palestine three mechanized divisions possibly paid for and equipped by Jews.

"Palestine at this moment contains an unarmed Jewish population. I urge that the Jews in Palestine be at once armed and equipped to enable them to defend the interests of the British Empire and in so doing to lighten the task of the regular troops."

An appeal to Great Britain to sanction the formation of an all-Jewish army to defend Palestine was made also by The Zionist Review, official organ of the British Zionist Federation. Condemning further delay as fatal, the Zionist paper urged Britain to authorize a Jewish army immediately.

Pointing out that General Wavell had complained of a shortage of man power in the North African and Balkan campaigns, the Zionist Review reminded Britain that as early as September, 1939, 136,000 Palestine Jews had registered for national service.

"New Statesman and Nation" scored the government's policy of "appeasing the wrong people" and declared that, with the exception of the Greeks, the Jews in Palestine were Britain's only trustworthy friends in the Near East.

With an attempted Axis invasion of Palestine considered by military strategists there as a matter of days or weeks, the Palestine Jewish community of 500,000 persons adopted a series of emergency measures placing the Yishuv on a war footing.

Palestine Jewish leaders indicated that a Nazi-Italian drive towards the Suez through Palestine and Syria would meet with bitter resistance in the Holy Land.

Grynzpan Fund Diverted To Air Raid Victims

Dorothy Thompson, organizer of the Herschel Grynzpan Defense Fund for the defense of the young Polish Jew who assassinated Ernst vom Rath, secretary of the German Embassy in Paris in 1938, announced that the final $8,000 of the fund had been presented to the Foster Parents Plan for War Children, Inc., in London for the rehabilitation of children injured during air raids.

Miss Thompson pointed out that when the fund was originally started as a "Journalists' Defense Fund," contributions were received with the understanding that any funds not needed for the case itself would be distributed to creditable organizations looking after the interests of the victims of Nazi Germany.

The fund received $40,213 in donations and spent $5,346 in preparation for the defense of Grynzpan. His trial was postponed for the duration of the war, however, and after the fall of France he was taken prisoner by the Germans.

Meanwhile, the fund had distributed $5,250 to the American Guild for German Cultural Freedom, $5,000 each to the Catholic Committee for Refugees from Germany, the Intercollegiate Committee to Aid Student Refugees and Self-Help for German Emigrés, Inc. The German Jewish Children's Aid, the American Friends Service Committee and Dr. Thomas Mann received $2,500 each for refugee help.

An additional $8,000 was spent through the American Guild for German Cultural Freedom for aiding writers and artists to emigrate to Mexico and Latin America, and Americans of German Descent. This left a balance of $3,000.

Prejudice Should Be Discussed, Says Goodwill Leader

Protestants, Catholics and Jews must rally to defend the convictions and values for which religion stands, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy asserted in Boston, speaking as director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews before the forty-fifth annual meeting of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dr. Clinchy said that the democratic process rests upon the concept of religion and makes it doubly important that "desperate attacks" be resisted.

"Catholics, Protestants and Jews," he said, "must seek to understand and appreciate one another and learn to cooperate with each other more than they have ever done in the past."

He urged the congress to make the parent-teacher associations active instruments of democratic education. He said there ought to be frank discussions during the coming year of the little hates and prejudices between members of every community.

"Develop your activities so that the mothers of all children, whatever their religion, race or color, will have a part and place in the program," he advised. "Investigate the libels, untruths and general ignitions which make otherwise fine American homes the breeding grounds of intolerance. Implead upon and give aid to your teachers in devising ways of making democracy work in the schools. The American of tomorrow will bless you for the intelligence and energy with which you meet this challenge today."

New Humiliations Are Lot Of Foreign Jews In France

The Paris press declared two new concentration camps in the Paris area where 3,700 foreign Jews are confined pending assignment to forced-labor battalions.

Some 2,000 Jews are in nineteen old wooden barracks, surrounded by barbed wire, near Beaune La Rolande. Another 1,694 are in eleven barracks at Pithiviers. Mobile Guard riflemen on high platforms watch them.

The Jews are said to be allowed half a pound of bread a day and meat twice a week. Their papers are stamped with a large "J" and their uniform clothing has a yellow tag to identify them as Jews.

Rabbi Is Co-Chairman Of U.S. National Defense Service Board

Close cooperation of the rabbinate and synagogue groups in the program of the United Service Organizations for National Defense is indicated by the acceptance of a co-chairmanship of the U. S. O.'s Advisory Board by Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore, president of the Synagogue Council of America.

Announcement of Rabbi Israel's acceptance was made by Walter Hoving, president of the U. S. O., along with that of the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit, [illegible] to Americans of German Descent. This left a balance of $3,000.

Rabbi Israel's acceptance of the post was hailed by the Rev. Dr. David De Sola Pool, chairman of the committee on religious activities of the Jewish Welfare Board, which is the Jewish member agency of the United Service Organizations.

Wanton Murder In Poland Charged

Labor Camp Death Rate Of Jews Is Ten Per Cent

According to a statement issued by an anonymous diplomatic source at Washington, D. C. "wanton murdering of Poles by the Gestapo under the pretext of legal passing of death sentences" has not ceased in that Nazi-occupied country.

"The worst kind of terror is applied against the Jews, particularly in compulsory labor camps near the Soviet border. The death rate amounts to 10 per cent—from this quota 4 per cent executed."

The statement says that the Hitler youth in Poland is trained "in various methods of persecuting Poles" and quotes a Nazi newspaper containing "laudable comment" on two members of the Hitler Jugend who aided German authorities in the capture of men wanted by the police.

Recruiting for work in the Reich is described as follows:

"With the coming of Spring, the German authorities in Poland began anew the process of recruiting Polish working forces for the Reich. Undoubtedly, German actions in this respect will undergo several stages. First, the Germans tempt the hunger-stricken population with various promises, then, gradually, they employ more radical measures of force, finally it ends similarly to the last year's procedure—brutal 'man-hunting' in the cities, villages and streets.

"The first stage in this procedure is characterized by a commentary in the Krakauer Zeitung of April 23, which states that the Polish workers have changed their attitude and are enrolling voluntarily to leave for the Reich. The inducements are better wages than those received in German-occupied Poland.

"Workers wishing to leave their employment, in face of bad conditions and brutal treatment, are forced to remain. If they escape they are sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. Death sentences have been imposed in several instances. It is not surprising, therefore, that workers in occupied countries are reluctant to work in Germany. In consequence of Germany's labor shortage, recruiting offices have been opened in all occupied countries, those suffering the greatest distress naturally receiving the most attention—no fewer than 250 recruiting offices have been opened in the Warsaw district alone.

The effect of the attacks of the Royal Air Force on industrial plants in Central Western Germany has caused the Nazis to organize a new industrial center in the remotest districts of the eastern part of Nazi-occupied Poland, the statement declares. It continues:

"Industrial plants already there (Eastern Poland) have been

● Jewish General Hospital: 4,879 patients were admitted in 1940, the largest number yet recorded, Allan Bronfman, president, reported at the seventh annual meeting. Statistics included: public patients, 29,285; private patients, 8,120; semi-private patients, 16,581; average of 170 patients per day treated; 31,537 visits made to out-patient department, an increase of 221 over 1939; 2,803 operations performed, 711 more than in the previous year; 6,327 cases radiographed; 2,353 treatments given in the X-Ray department, 700 more than in 1939; the institutional mortality rate declined from 2.4 percent in 1939 to 2.1 percent last year; in the maternity department there were 779 cases, "and the year ended without recording a single maternal death." Operating costs for the year were $300,396; operating income, $226,578; operating deficit, $73,810, and while this was covered, and slightly exceeded by the results of last year's maintenance campaign, Mr. Bronfman pointed out that "the burden of debt resulting from deficits accumulated in previous years, and which has reached approximately $100,000 gives serious concern to your Board of Administration. Its elimination is of prime importance to the financial security of your hospital." There was inaugurated a "tumour clinic" at which a group of specialists from the various departments studies every case suspected of cancer or other tumour. Samuel S. Cohen, superintendent, reported a continuous demand for public ward beds, which it was not always possible to meet. There were 16,924 examinations in the department of laboratories in 1940 and "the need for additional laboratory space becomes more urgent." The average cost per patient day for all classes of patients was $4.86 as compared with $4.84 for the previous year but this higher rate was attributed to the increased operating cost as well as the considerable higher number of private and semi-private patients treated. Re-elected to the Board of Administration were: Allan Bronfman, Michael Hirsch, A. H. Jacoby, J. Levinson, Sr., Louis Salomon. Other members of the Board: Harry Benjamin, Samuel Bronfman, Horace R. Cohen, Isaac Gold, David Kirsch, Jack Klein, Sydney Levitt, Councillor Max Seigler, M. M. Sperber, K.C., R. E. Workman. Re-elected to the Board of Trustees: Samuel Hart, Henry Weinfield, K.C., H. Wolofsky. Mon Feldman was elected to succeed Elijah Silverstone. Other members of the Board of Trustees: Harry Bronfman, C. B. Palner, Tobias Glickman Robert Hirsch, J. Kaufman, Samuel Pesner, C. S. Rubin, Arthur Simon.

● Jewish General Hospital Women's Auxiliary board meets on Wednesday, June 4th, at 2.30 p.m. Mrs. Alton Goldbloom will preside. To have collections of empty bottles and jars called for, telephone Mrs. M. J. Izman, Walnut 3583; or Mrs. B. Kahn, Crescent 5534.

● Mount Sinai Sanatorium: Ladies Auxiliary Unit No. 3 met at the home of Mrs. A. Gordon, McEachran Avenue, where they raffled a picture and number 944 was drawn. The name on the ticket is Joseph Schwartz.

NEW BUSINESS OF OCCIDENTAL LIFE SOARS

Gains in volume of business, assets, policyholders' reserves and surplus funds are revealed in the 1940 annual statement of the Occidental Life Insurance Company which maintains its Canadian head office in London, Ont.

According to W. Lockwood Miller, general manager for Canada, total insurance in force increased to a new record high of $519,239,496, a gain of $29,180,780 over a year ago. Another record was set in total assets which increased by $7,536,180 over the previous 12 months to a total of $72,448,841. Premium income for the year was $14,113,760.36, while total paid policyholders since organization has now reached $66,824,477.45. Surplus in excess of all liabilities to all policyholders made up of contingency and investment reserves, capital, etc., stood at $4,471,738.23.

A continued favorable mortality experience testifies to the quality of the risks carried by the company and interest earnings on invested funds, maintained at so high a figure through the depression years by Occidental, were most favorable during 1940.

Licensed under the Dominion Government Insurance Act, the company has on deposit with the receiver-general at Ottawa approved securities covering the full reserve required on all liabilities to Canadian policyholders. The market value of these securities is considerably in excess of a million dollars as of December 31 last.

New life insurance sold in 1940 totaled $74,377,500 and Occidental's life insurance in force increased 224 per cent in the 10 years just ended — a superb record during a difficult decade.

The Reconstructionist Viewpoint

RELIGION FOR THE JEWISH LAYMAN

By Rabbi Eugene Kohn, Managing Editor, The Reconstructionist Magazine

One of the worst symptoms of the decadence of Jewish religion in modern times is the sharp line of demarcation between the "clergy" and the "laity" in Jewish life. It is generally assumed, for example, that questions of theology, religious observance and forms of worship are exclusively reserved for the rabbinate. It is equally assumed that Jewish philanthropy, the defense of Jewish rights, political and social problems are the special province of the laity. To be sure, there is a measure of co-operation between the two groups and individuals are to be found in either group who do not conform to the general pattern. But, in general, it is true that the laity is not expected to have any creative share in Jewish religious life, and the rabbinate is not expected to have any creative share in the so-called secular institutions.

There is one notable exception to that rule — the Reconstructionist Movement. At the annual meeting of the Jewish Reconstructionist Foundation, for example, the program calls for a discussion led by Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan on "The Doctrine Of The Chosen People." Is there any other organization in Jewish life in which laymen and rabbis could conceivably come together to discuss a religious doctrine of this character? In most circles, the rabbi is expected to tell the people what they are to believe, and the laymen have the option of accepting what they are told, of rejecting it, or — and this is the usual choice — of ignoring it as inconsequential.

This condition in modern Jewish life runs counter both to what is best in Jewish tradition and what is most needed for Jewish living in our day.

From the beginning of Judaism until recent times, religious belief and practice were in ever increasing measure the concern of the entire people. The term rabbi, in its origin, had no reference to a profession or vocation, but was an honorific title bestowed on one learned in the Torah and qualifying him for certain judicial and educational functions. It was not a prerequisite to speaking from the pulpit, or to performing any religious rite. Even in the ghetto, when the rabbi prepared to lecture on a topic of Jewish law, he had to prepare himself with great care lest his statements be challenged by a learned member of the congregation. Only in our day has the rabbinate deteriorated into a priesthood with specific religious functions denied to the laity. The Rabbinate has come to be regarded as a class of specially sanctified persons who serve as religious proxies to relieve the rest of Jewry from responsibility for Jewish religious life.

If the situation described has no sanction in Jewish tradition, it has even less justification from the point of view of modern need. Jews today, more than ever, need morale. They are confused, disheartened and terrified by anti-Semitism, by war, by shifting moral standards. They need a religion that reckons realistically with their day-to-day problems and helps them meet these problems in a hopeful, courageous and ethical spirit. Such a religion cannot be handed down from the past like an heirloom. We cannot possess it unless we help to create it. Our own experiences, no less than the experiences of our forefathers must enter into its make-up. We cannot accept a belief because somebody else tells us to believe it; we cannot worship God with the words of others that mean nothing to us; we cannot regard as binding rules that do not take our circumstances into account, nor submit to a religious government that does not derive its authority from the consent of the governed. That is why Jewish religion must be the product of the creative thinking, feeling and striving of all Jews, and not a restricted class insulated from many of those experiences in the world of work and conflict which cry for a religious solution.

Who is responsible for this unwholesome division between the spheres of the rabbinate and the laity? The evil originated in historic events and circumstances which cannot here be traced, but responsibility for its perpetuation rests on rabbis and laymen alike. Too many rabbis enjoy playing the oracle shrink from meeting the challenge of lay thinking, feel their dignity enhanced by functioning as the sole religious authority in their congregation, are flattered by being considered nearer to God and more intimately acquainted with His will than the laymen who employ his services.

And too many laymen enjoy their immunity from religious responsibility, like to feel a vicarious virtue in paying the salary of a rabbi who relieves them of their responsibility of thinking about God and worshiping Him. Too many are content with professing a belief, though the belief means so little to them that they do not even bother to question whether they actually do believe what they profess. Too many are content with belonging to a synagogue for purposes of respectability, attending its services as a matter of form or from a sense of duty without getting a spark of religious inspiration from their attendance. Too many conform to Jewish practices or fail to conform to them without the faintest idea of what they are all about.

The rabbi who is humbly sincere in wanting to promote Jewish religion chafes at being treated like a "sacred cow" or some venerable antique that is taken care of but never put to use. And the intelligent layman who is sensitive to spiritual values is not satisfied with a merely passive role in Jewish religion, with reciting the creeds of others, with uttering the prayers of others, with observing meaningless tabus and unintelligible rites on the say-so of some other person. He wants Jewish religion to answer to his own need for religious self-expression. Reconstructionism brings that kind of rabbi and that kind of layman into happy fellowship for the advancement of Judaism as a religious civilization.

THE EIGHTH DECENNIAL

Census of Canada

June 2, 1941

THE Census is the stock-taking of the nation — of its men, women, and children; its agriculture, trade, and industry; its housing, and general social condition. By it, all Governments, — Dominion, Provincial and Municipal — are enabled to work more effectively and economically in the interest of every resident of the Dominion.

IN these days of increasing Government responsibilities, no Government can give the best service unless it has detailed and accurate knowledge of the people and their varying circumstances. That is why we request the co-operation of all Canadian citizens in the taking of the Census. When the Government's Enumerator calls at your door, receive him courteously and give him all the information for which he asks.

Remember that he is in your service. Accuracy and despatch in your replies will promote good administration in your country, now under stress of war and facing crucial post-war reconstruction.

ALL INFORMATION SUPPLIED HELD STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL

You can place absolute trust in the official Enumerator, who is sworn to secrecy. All the information which you provide will be held in strictest confidence both by him and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, and can never be used against you by any tax-collecting, military, or other agency, or in any court of law.

It is compulsory by law to answer the questions, but you will be assisting your Government in these difficult times by giving the information readily and accurately in the spirit of good citizenship.

Issued by authority of The Honourable JAMES A. MacKINNON, M.P., Minister.

The Troubles We've Seen

By Sara Zaikin, of the Toronto Jewish Family Welfare Bureau

(Real names are not used here.)

Tall and thin, Mr. Lionel came to the office of the Jewish Family Welfare Bureau when he was discharged from the San. He was still receiving treatment from the Hospital, but, because his infection was arrested, he was no longer a source of contagion and could live a fairly normal life.

The San referred Mr. Lionel because they knew he needed help in getting used to living in the community after many years of hospital life. He was naturally bewildered and confused by the change.

The case worker helped Mr. Lionel to find a suitable boarding house. She helped him to arrange for his relief voucher to be mailed to him by the Public Relief Department, thus saving him the fatigue of calling for it. His relief voucher did not include anything for extras, such as laundry, or recreation, and the Jewish Family Welfare Bureau therefore gave him a monthly cheque to cover this.

Every two or three weeks the case worker visits him. Or else, if he feels well and the weather is fine, he comes to the office. They talk about how he is getting along. The difficulties he has with his landlady do not seem so great after he has talked about them. Because the case worker knew that the Library Branch in his neighbourhood arranged lectures and musical evenings, she introduced him to the librarian and saw to it that he was invited to those activities in which he showed an interest.

Instead of being a hospital patient living in an artificial world, Mr. Lionel is becoming an integral part of the community in which he lives.

taken over by Nazi productive capacity—increased evacuation of industries from Reich into 'safety' zones is proceeding at accelerated tempo. Germany's war industry is on the retreat. Germany's organizers are seeking safety in industrial centers of Poland.

"When Germans invaded Poland they began at once to dismantle and break up factories, plants, intending to reduce the country to purely an agricultural economy. Suddenly, a remarkable change occurred. In a circular marked 'Strictly Confidential' issued by order of Goering through German Governor Franck, German authorities in charge of execution of the four-year plan in Poland received significant instructions, namely:

The capacity of industrial establishments is to be explored to the utmost and in certain cases to be extended so as to facilitate the most speedy execution of all orders of a military economic nature. Productive capacity of such industrial plants as have not yet received army orders from the Reich is to be maintained to replace those industrial enterprises in the Reich which, being of military importance, have been or are to be evacuated.'

"Large-scale dismantling was forthwith suspended and replaced by a program of development for war production on an ever-increasing scale."

The statement gives the following excerpts from the latest reports from Poland: "Intensification of terror, with purpose to exterminate Poles and weaken their psychological and political resistance.

"In January, 1941, in four days alone, 1,000 people have been arrested in Warsaw under suspicion of: (1) activities toward the restitution of Poland's independence; (2) pre-war activities in the social domain; (3) being leaders of the intelligentsia; (4) belonging to Boy Scout organizations.

"Early in February, in Warsaw alone, an additional 5,000 people were arrested. Prisons are overcrowded.

"In the concentration camp near Oswiecim the death rate amounts to 25 per cent."

Oratorio, Based On Leivick's Drama, Sung By Jewish Chorus

Vladimir Heifetz's oratorio, "The Golem," based on the poetic drama by H. Leivick, received its first presentation in its entirety recently in Carnegie Hall, with the composer on the podium. The work was sung by the Jewish Culture Society Chorus, with Alexander Kipnis, the Metropolitan bass, as the principal soloist.

"The Golem" was presented in New York in its original dramatic form in 1927 by the Muscow Art Theatre Habima Players and revived at the Civic Repertory Theatre in 1931. It also was given in New York on the screen as early as 1921.

This story of a Frankenstein-like monster, created by a seventeenth-century rabbi in Prague for beneficent purposes, only to succumb to evil influences that lead to its destruction, possesses religious connotations making it suitable for oratorio purposes. But the libretto proved rather vague for musical treatment.

The author of the drama, who edited the curtailed version set by Mr. Heifetz, divided the text into four sections, entitled "The Creation of the Golem," "The Revelation of the Golem," "The Temptation of the Golem" and "The Golem's Destiny." Mr. Heifetz's music had the most to say in the first two of these divisions. Thereafter the composer permitted a cheapness to prevail in most of the numbers that caused the latter half of the oratorio to dwindle away in anti-climax.

The opening two parts, though tending toward monotony of effect, relied largely on a type of traditional Jewish music for their inspiration that gave them considerable dignity and strength. Later a more trivial, operatic style was adopted that led not only to disintegration, but to a disruption of any sense of unity in the opus as a whole.

But his best effects were obtained in the more dramatic episodes, especially in those allotted to the Golem himself, such as the extremely difficult outburst, "Do not go," and the ensuing solo in the scene of the evil spirits, both of which were delivered by Mr. Kipnis with great fervor and intensity in tones of remarkable richness and power. The score was too prolix, too wanting in contrapuntal writing and in any sure sense of direction toward climactic points, to achieve real importance, even had Mr. Heifetz been able to sustain his melodic inspiration throughout, says Noel Strauss, of the New York Times.

The choral numbers of the work, which was given in Yiddish, were ably negotiated by the enthusiastic and talented choristers. Mania Plat, soprano, gave commendable account of herself in the music of the Spirit of the Golem. Sol Tisman sang the baritone solos of the Rabbi, and Sonia Eidus and Abraham Kopitz, pianists, and Alexander Richardson at the organ provided the accompaniment, which was filled with banalities and too thin to balance the choral writing.

CANADA CALLS

Canada has reason to count her blessings in these days of trial.

Canada is three thousand miles away from the sound of guns which are devastating Europe.

The broad Atlantic Ocean rolls between us and the ruthless savagery of the German Armies.

The strongest fleets in the world—British, American and Canadian—patrol the sea between us and the enemy.

We have a great friendly nation, probably the richest and most powerful in the world, at our side.

CANADA CAN AFFORD HER SACRIFICES

This war is a mechanized war.

We have the nickel . . . copper . . . lead . . . zinc and other metals the war industries need. We have access to the iron. We can make the steel.

We have the organized industries to fabricate these metals and make the trucks, and tanks, and guns, and planes, and the ships.

We have skilled workers and the plants for mass production. Canada has the wheat and the food supplies.

Let us count our blessings, and tighten our belts.

Canada is rich—one of the richest countries per head of population in the world. Let us lend our strength to the utmost of our power. Our national future depends upon Victory.

We must win to live.

THERE WILL BE FURTHER CALLS

There have been many calls upon the people of this country for money since Canada entered the war at the side of Great Britain.

There will be further calls.

Let us face the future unafraid.

Canada can carry the load.

But every Canadian must shoulder his and her share.

This is the most critical hour in our history. Let the future historians say of Canada, as they will say of our Mother Country: "This was their finest hour."

Get under your load... and LIFT

Support Victory Loan 1941 — Defeat Barbarism!

Jewish citizens of Canada will give energetic support to the Victory Loan Campaign which commences on June the second. They will do so as citizens of a democracy and as members of a minority people that has been the very first to be singled out as the victims of the new tyranny. Eight years ago the Nazis unleashed a cowardly, sadistic war upon the Jew. If only the civilized world had acted then! Perhaps much of the misery which the world now experiences might not have come to be. The Jew was practically abandoned then because statesmen and nations believed in isolationism—they even had hoped to make settlement with the Nazi fiend. But we of Israel knew that the horrors inflicted upon Israel by the Nazi were motivated by the fact that the Jew is the historical bearer and symbol of that way of life which seeks justice for all peoples: the way which calls for freedom, God, democracy and human kindliness.

We also knew as Jews that the Nazi attack upon us meant ultimately the assault upon civilization. Hence the burning of 570 synagogues in one night within the Third Reich was but the prelude to the destruction of cathedral and church, be it Catholic or Protestant. It was a prelude, too, to the bombing and burnings of the shrines of Christendom within the British Isles.

And was it not natural for Britain to take up the fight and to become the ally of the Jew in this grim war for freedom? Of all peoples the British have been closely identified with the Hebrew scriptures for centuries. The English, through school and church, have through centuries come to revere the greatest exponents of justice and righteousness, the Hebrew Prophets. Hence, in whatever field of action Britain and her allies are now engaged to defeat Hitler, there stands the Jew. Whether it be on the field of battle or in the purchase of loans to make possible the tools for battle, Israel is there to give of himself in this titanic combat for the preservation of those values without which life is meaningless.

Sacrifice is the very essence of religion and certainly of Judaism. Not much of sacrifice is it to invest in the victory loan. It may involve drastic adjustments in every day living and spending. But that is little enough when we measure the grimness and desperation of the hour.

Jews of the Dominion along with all citizens of every race and creed will not fail or falter in this victory loan campaign. They stand ready to do more that freedom does not perish from the earth.

They Who Sponge On The Synagogue

Louisville, Kentucky, has set an example to all Jewish religious communities of America in driving home to the unaffiliated Jews that they must support the House of God. The synagogues of Louisville will no longer tolerate spongers or parasites. And here is the method. The five Jewish congregations out of six decided to deny any religious ministry to Jews who though materially able, do not support a Temple or Synagogue. Thus, by resolution adopted, no Jew can obtain the services of a Rabbi or a synagogue in connection with weddings, the rite of circumcision, bar-mitzvahs or funerals unless he holds membership in a synagogue. Out of a population of about 2,190 families, only 1,200 are affiliated.

We congratulate the inter-congregation committee of Louisville for such a bold and decisive stand. It's high time that synagogue-spongers be categorized where they belong.

It's the gravest Chilul Ha-Shem to find many Jews so negligent in their dealings with the organized religious institutions. Whatever be a man's inclination, he can join either the Reform, Conservative or Orthodox synagogue as a matter of self-respect and certainly as an eloquent testimony of loyalty to the religious heritage of Israel, without which heritage Jewish striving and suffering have no deep significance.

We must call a halt in Jewish life to a "three day Jewish religious expression", that of Rosh Hashonah, Yom Kippur and Yahrzeit. Judaism is an every day whole year meaningful way of life or nothing at all. Then, too, is it fair that the burden of financial support of the synagogue be shouldered by those who belong, while those who have no claim on the synagogue make ample use of its premises, its Rabbis and other synagogue officials?

Of course, the ideal way would be if our synagogues were endowed, without membership, that Jews would just be contributors and the House of God be open for all who wish to come. Even the so-called secular Jews who choose not to have synagogue affiliation do get the urge to come on occasions to the synagogue service, even these seek the rabbi's blessing in the great hours of life. With a sympathetic approach these may be rewon for the "faith of the fathers".

Perhaps rich or well-to-do Jews who belong to the synagogue could render a great service in the cause of the unaffiliated by making it financially possible to have the Temple doors open wide to all who seek the blessings and ministry of religion. Why do affiliated rich Jews give a pittance to the synagogue when these should be the very ones to set the example of dignified generous giving to the institution that is primary in Jewish life? If they gave enough, the Louisville method of forcing Jews to belong because of financial necessity would not have to be employed.

While the Louisville method is practical it is far from inspirational. It would be better if they who believe truly in the synagogue gave so generously that not out of financial stress but because of soul urge and love for faith the synagogue would seek to win souls for God and the House of God.

Montreal numbers hundreds of Jewish families who all year around hold no membership in the synagogue. It is a grave problem in the realm primarily of the spiritual. The spiritual and lay heads of our synagogues ought to hold counsel to remedy this certainly spiritually unhealthy state in our communal life.

May we remind the good unafflicted folks that membership in Bnai Brith, in Zionism, in Federation, etc., is not to be taken as ersatz or substitute affiliation with the synagogue. These organizations are by-products of the religious heritage and worthwhile in themselves, but do not and can not claim priority to the greatest and the foundation institution of Jewish life — The Synagogue.

Shabuoth And Confirmation

This Sunday, June first, the Feast of Shabuoth will be observed. In its inception the festival was purely an agricultural feast. At a much later date in Jewish life it was invested with great spiritual significance by being linked with the story of revelation at Sinai, the giving of the Law. Liberal Judaism has chosen this feast as an appropriate time for the beautiful ceremony of Confirmation.

To the Reformers it seemed but logical that the day upon which all Israel had accepted the Law at Sinai should mark the affirmation and pledge of youth to uphold the faith of the fathers. Hence, throughout Canada and the United States, and in many other parts of the world, Jewish boys and girls on Sunday next will vow to uphold the torch of Judaism. We must underscore that while Orthodox Judaism still adheres only to the confirmation or bar-mitzvah of the boy, in Liberal Judaism with the rise of general equality for women, girls equally with boys are received in the congregation.

The Confirmation ceremony did not come into Judaism without struggle. However, it is here to stay and many Conservative congregations have come to recognize the value of this reform in Jewish life. We predict that not in the far distant future most synagogues will have to reckon with this inspiring ceremony that annually has given so much stimulation to Jewish religious striving.

Confirmants will bear in mind that confirmation this year is certainly fraught with world significance. For the war between totalitarianism and democracy is a war of ideas. Mein Kampf is in combat with the Kampf of Sinai. Two philosophies symbolized by two books are contending, The Book of Books and Hitler's Book. We know that the Torah will triumph. May Jewish youth ever come to know that the Law of the Lord is perfect restoring the soul; that in this Law is to be found the meaning of civilization and human progress.

every friday

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Everywhere there is often being raised a cry for Jewish unity or for something that might pass for it. Recently the Reconstructionist Magazine, urging a united Jewish front in America, asked for surgical treatment to revive the General Jewish Council, the ultimate death of which this column accurately predicted at the time of its inception. The Reconstructionist wants "unity of purpose, unity of soul", no less. The New Palestine, perhaps more inured to the rigors of life in disunity, would be satisfied with "provisional unity", and as a step thereto proposes that the American Jewish Congress call a democratic emergency assembly to do the trick. The Congress Weekly, organ of that body, plays with the idea. In weighing the possibilities for success, it shows how divided the house of Israel is, but states the belief that unity could be achieved if "the bodies articulating Jewish opinion" would prove that they are ready to do battle for it. These bodies are not named.

It is commonplace to say that more ominous than the enemies that stalk the Jew on every side are the deep hatreds and the festered antagonisms through which are revealed the differences dividing Jewry into what amounts to armed camps, sometimes giving the appearance of division organized for the mere satisfaction of snarling and fighting. It is only the Gentile who sees Jewry as a clannish group united and speaking with one firm voice. The Jews know that it is a case of "peace, peace and there is no peace." They know that there is no such thing as real and complete unity, that there never has been and that there probably never will be. The most that can be hoped for is co-operation with regard to some things and a respect for the right of some to differ from others; and that would be a lot, comparatively.

Of the world the Jews ask the right to think and believe as they like, certainly the right to differ. Among themselves do they accord that right? Illiberalism and intolerance are the deadly enemies of the Jews and they are its first victims. Are they liberal-minded and tolerant of differences among themselves? Pledged to participation in a war against forces that seek to destroy democracy, how democratic are some toward others, once they acquire money? When the advocates of Jewish unity talk about unity and democracy, they sometimes sound as though what they are really hankering after is a regimented solidarity which has the familiar ring of the totalitarian solidarity that distinguishes the dictatorship of Germany. There is no doubt that if some Jewish cliques, eager for popularity, political power, and dominance, could work it, they would soon demonstrate that a rigid solidarity might sound like unity but have the effect of a tyranny, with new tests and insinuations for loyalty to Judaism, as a means of herding people together under one banner.

The Congress Weekly sees this present period as a time when unity is needed more than ever. It weeps that at this critical juncture the Jewish community, disorganized and strife-torn, is a source of grief, especially in view of the Jewish future with respect to the restoration of Jewish rights at the peace conference at the end of the war. In other words, it wants sanction for action in response to a specific instance of pressure from the outside world and crowd authority for it would be called unity. It is in reality merely the calling together of people who call themselves Jews for the purpose of seeming to give authority with regard to some one occurrence. Such unity had better be called occasional solidarity. It has nothing essential or intrinsic to do with Jewish life and living and is therefore no indication at all of Jewish unity over anything, for example, so vital and commanding of critical thought and attention as building a better Jewish community here at home.

This column does not derogate unity or the need for it. Just because unity has never been achieved in Jewish life does not mean that there can not be a good approximation toward it as an ideal. That approach is through cooperation for aims and purposes that strengthen the quality and character of Jewish life and raise the tone of its service to all humanity in a way to show the world what Judaism stands for. If Jews could work together harmoniously on the variety of jobs they have to do that would be the ideal state. Failing that, they will have to devise at least a measure of cooperation if they are going to survive as a group despite their differences. But they must differentiate between synthetic solidarity and true unity.

Solidarity may mean nothing more real, for example, than a mass protest meeting which is an expression of transitory emotion instead of logic. Such a demonstration can not be effective in any lasting way because it is only another term for false unity. It may look all right as a showing at a quick glance. But a physical phalanx may only serve the special unscrupulous purposes of demagogues and politicians by appearing to be unity. It is not the real goods and will not wear for purposes of Jewish preservation.

Can Britain Arm The Jews Of Palestine, Christian Century Asks

The Christian Century, renowned undenominational weekly magazine, says:

Rabbi Wise and the leaders of orthodox Judaism recently published appeals to Great Britain to arm the Jews of Palestine. With the movement of the war toward the eastern Mediterranean, they fear developments which may result in a terrible massacre of their fellow religionists by the Arabs. They say that the extermination of the unarmed and helpless Jewish community would be an end to British administration of the Palestine mandate which would go down in history to her shame and disgrace. This is true, but it is only half the truth. The other half is that Britain, as the Jewish leaders know as well as anybody, would like nothing better than to arm the Palestinian Jews but does not dare for their sakes as well as her own. Several divisions of troops could probably be raised by this method, and every division counts now in the defense of vital oil reserves and the Suez canal. But Britain withholds arms because nothing would more quickly precipitate the entire Moslem world into the Axis camp than such an act. The long and bitter disputes over land in Palestine following upon the Balfour promises to the Jews in the First World War have so inflamed the Arabs that issuance of arms to the people whom they regard as usurpers of their homeland would almost certainly precipitate the massacres they are intended to avert. A tragic dilemma thus confronts British statesmanship, which is poignantly aware of the possibility of repetition now in Palestine of the dreadful Armenian massacres of the last war. Hardly less tragic are the alternatives facing the Jewish leaders who have encouraged the migration of tens of thousands of homeless Jews to Palestine. They now urge a course of action which they know cannot be followed because all other courses are equally impossible to face.

Histadruth, emphasized the need of enlarging the Jewish armed forces and demanded that every able-bodied union member enlist immediately. The Histadruth named a special committee to press the recruiting program among its 125,000 members.

Jewish recruiting was spurred by radio reports from Rome that the Axis soldiers would march through Palestine, pillaging and destroying Jewish homes, shops and farms, in the same manner that the Roman legions of ancient times brought destruction to Palestine.

Posters calling for daily prayers for Britain until an Allied victory has been achieved were posted throughout the country under instructions of the Chief Rabbinate. Thousands of Jews flocked to the Wailing Wall and holy graves offering prayers for the preservation of Palestine and a British victory.

The possibility of forming an all-Jewish army, fighting under a Jewish flag, which has been demanded by Zionist leaders for months, was held not unlikely as the war moved closer to the Near East. Jewish leaders maintain that a Jewish army of 100,000 could be mobilized immediately for the defense of Palestine providing Great Britain grants permission.

The joint proclamation recently issued by the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Vaad Leumi (Jewish National Council) called on all unmarried men of Eretz Israel between the ages of 20 and 30 to prepare themselves for immediate military service.

"In view of the position in the Middle East," the manifesto declared, "we proclaim it the duty of all such men to present themselves for service with the Jewish units on May 4."

The announcement emphasized the fact that the Yishuv had already given almost 10,000 young men to the British Army.

A further step in the completion of Tel Aviv's precautions against air-raid attacks was taken with the opening recently of 60 more first aid posts in that city by the Jewish A. R. P. Association. There had previously been 20 posts there.

Each first aid post has 10 sections under a warden. The posts each have two stretchers, fire-fighting appliances, devices to handle incendiary bombs and other life-saving equipment. Each also has a staff consisting of a doctor, several fire fighters and nursing orderlies and A. R. P. wardens.

The equipment of these stations cost £1,000, and the amount was quickly oversubscribed.

There are now over 1,000 A.R.P. wardens and volunteers attached to Tel Aviv's A. R. P. Association. They serve without pay.

That it is now up to America to send to Palestine's Jews the adequate armament that they need to defend the Jewish National Home against the intended invasion of it by the Nazi armed forces is the flat assertion of a cable printed in the London News Chronicle from G. E. R. Gedye, formerly foreign correspondent of the New York Times.

Revealing, in printing this frank attack on British policy in Palestine, the fact that in bomb-scarred London there is open criticism of the negligent and callous official attitude which has preferred the so often disproved doctrine of appeasement toward unfriendly elements to the obviously indicted arming of a willing ally in the fight for democracy, the News Chronicle endorses the plea to America to use her influence to save Palestine's over half million Jews "from unprecedented horrors."

"Hitler's plans for the destruction of the British Empire," Mr. Gedye declares, "include the destruction by fire and sword of 50 years of Zionist endeavor.

"The Jews of Palestine believe themselves capable of defending their homeland, but they lack equipment — equipment which the Nazis are at the present moment bending every effort to smuggle to Arab terrorists with the aid of the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem."

Asserting that Syria is the chief danger spot, and emphasizing the tremendous disaster that would overwhelm Palestine if the Germans should succeed in invading the country "where the Jews have established a new civilization," Mr. Gedye says:

"The Jews of Palestine foresaw this danger and repeatedly urged the establishment of an effective defense army; but thus far Great Britain has rejected their offer."

RABBI IS CO-CHAIRMAN OF U.S. NATIONAL DEFENSE BOARD
